

An Evaluation of South Ayrshire Assisted Self-Build Project for Homeless and Vulnerable Young People (Phase 1)

Isobel Anderson¹ and Beth Crossan²

¹ Housing Policy and Practice Unit
University of Stirling
Stirling FK9 4LA
Tel: 01786 467718
Isobel.anderson@stir.ac.uk

² Centre for Research in Lifelong Learning
Glasgow Caledonian University
6 Rose St, 2nd Floor
Glasgow G3 6RB
0141 270 1343
b.crossan@gcal.ac.uk

March 04.

Acknowledgements

This evaluation would not have been possible without the co-operation of many people. We would like to express our sincere thanks to the following:

- To all the trainees who took part on the self build project, and who agreed to be interviewed and share their experiences with us.
- To the site managers who welcomed the evaluation, put up with our continued visits to the sites, made us numerous cups of tea, and who agreed to share their experiences with us - all with good humour and patience.
- To all the stakeholder groups who were involved in the project, for their continued support for the evaluation, and for sharing their experiences with us.
- To South Ayrshire Council for providing funding for this study.

Contents	Page No:
Section One: Introduction and literature review	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Context	2
Section Two: The evaluation	5
2.1 Aims and objectives	5
2.2 Methods	5
Section Three: Findings	7
3.1 The changing nature of the group	7
3.2 The trainees: backgrounds prior to joining the project	8
3.3 Employment and employability	10
3.4 Social relationships	15
3.5 Housing pathways	18
Section Four: Stakeholders perspectives on the project	21
4.1 Introduction	21
4.2 Getting involved	21
4.3 Project progress	21
4.4 Inter-agency working	25
4.5 Lesson learned and suggestion for the future	28
Section Five: Summary and implications	32
5.1 Project summary	32
5.2 The evaluation	32
5.3 Summary of findings	33
5.4 Recommendation and lessons learnt	37
References	39